INCIDENT (CAD CALL) DISPOSITION CODES

8/17/2009 4:02:42 PM

Overview: When a Computer Aided Dispatch (CAD) incident (call) is closed, specific codes are required to complete the incident. These codes indicate the officer findings and end result of an incident. In other words, the Complaint Type of a incident tells the officer what the incident is initially thought to be based on information available (this determines priority and response level) but when the officer finishes a incident the officer places the disposition codes on the call that indicate the real nature and action for a incident.

Method: When a call is completed, the officer will tell the dispatchers to close the incident and copy the codes. The officer then gives the appropriate codes for the incident dispositions. When coding out a CAD incident from your mobile terminal, the process is the same except the officer will type the codes if they are required.
